Probe of Court Martial Proceedings During War Underway

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 20.-Court martial sentences sent 142 soldiers to their deaths during the war years ing months, a house military sub-committee disclosed torecommending an extensive overhaul for the army's system of

The group reported that between Dec. 7, 1941, and Feb. 22, 1946, 72 men were executed for murder, 51 for rape, 18 for murder and rape, and one for desertion.

The findings were set forth in a 25,000-word document sharply critical of what the subcommittee called the injustices, the extreme severity of sentences and the partiality resulting from the existing court martial system.

Will Hear Witnesses

The full military committee has temporarily tabled the subcommittee's report at the War department's request, but will consider it next month. Army witnesses probably will be heard before the committee takes any formal

Recommendations

Among the subcommittee's rec ommendations were these: That the army be given a judicial department "as complete and autonomous in its field" as is the medical department; that it be fully manned with qualified personne to serve as members of courtsmartial and as defense counsel. That new provision be made for reversal of injustices.

Easter's Promise

There will be more thought than usual this Easter about promises that could be fulfilled if enough men grew fired of their own futility.

Human beings do not need to hate and kill one another. They do so by their own decision. They deny the brotherhood of man, or if they do not deny it they accept only the principle, ignoring the practice.

The promises they make to each other in the wake of each new wave of death and destruction could be kept. They could be renewed from year to year as the promise of Easter is renewed. Men could do this, if they chose.

Many do choose to do it. For almost 2,000 years, men have been moving closer to realization of the promise of Easter: that mankind can be redeemed if

Wherever the grass grows green on a soldier's grave, or a blossom falls on ground hallowed by suffering and death this Easter, the promise is renewed in someone's heart. Men never were closer to understanding the ultimate wisdom of Christianity than they are today, disillusioned by their latest denial of brotherhood with their own kind.

Disorganized Labor

home for lack of material. Strikes are holding auto Frineds meeting house at Middleton. production to a trickle, spreading distress among automobile workers.

Steel production throughout the country, reports Civilian Production Administration, is declining, due to the bituminous strike. Emergency conditions are imminent in railroads and coal-using utilities. All his home on McKinley ave. hope of further progress with reconversion now depends on John L. Lewis.

The first products of reconverted industry frequently are halted short of the market or marketed apole- ill at his home on Hill st, getically because some essential part cannot be supplied pending decision of other labor leaders to let unior members go back to work.

In Cleveland, an A.F.L. organization denies admission to newsmen belonging to C.I.O., contending that A.F.L. members could not attend meetings, so turn-about is fair play.

Throughout the United States preparations are afoot for a showdown in the war between A.F.L. and C.F.O.-for dues-paying members. Within the two labor organizations other preparations are afoot for a showdown in the war between officials for control of the organizations and their vast incomes.

Xet there continues to be absurd talk about organized labor as something with a single purpose and a shgle identity. In the present state of affairs, it is not organized labor, with no unity, no program, nothing but a bad combination of the gimmes and devil take the hindmost.

State Medicine Is The Issue

It is a tragic misfortune for the American people that extremists are doing most of the talking in the argument over ways and means of providing more adequate medical care. They misrepresent the issue which is whether or not the United States is to institute a plan of state medicine.

Everyone is in fundamental agreement on one point: that more adequate medical care for a greater number of citizens is desirable. The differences arise over the means of providing more adequate care. The bulk of the medical profession favors development of voluntary methods which already have produced tremeddous improvement in health security. These are the familiar methods of prepayment of medical costs and insurance.

The alternative offered by the profession's critics is state medicine, calling for involuntary payments from the public, a new division of federal bureaucracy and political control of the medical profession. This is the real issue. It is clouded deliberately and maliciously by persons who try to make it appear that the issue is whether or not to give more Americans more adequate medical care. They profess to be interested in a goal which is not at issue at all, when what they are really interested in is the means.

The medical profession has only one weapon with which to defend itself against the attempted political invasion of its prerogatives-the confidence of the people themselves. It is a battle for popular consent. On sone side are the doctors asking for the right to keep their profession out of politics. On the other side are the politicians itching for the privilege of getting their hands on the doctors and on the vast public funds that would accrue under state medicine men's suits is going into women's skirts-the tailored relations, and make changes, journeys, agreements, ones that would have to follow the same fashion as skirts made of material for which men are not com-

Ups and Downs

If skirts get longer, with or without the consent of Civilian Production Administration, millions of skirts stuations, whether these be in business, social or rowill be obsolete for the obvious reason that they cannot be lengthened. That would add to the shortage in men's suits. OPA may think it controls this matter, astute, alert and honest tactics on which integrity but the ultimate control is in the hands of fashion and high principle are rigidly adhered to. Be cautious designers.

Easter's Promise

There will be more thought than usual this Easter about promises that could be fulfilled if enough men grew Tired of their own futility.

Human beings do not need to hate and kill one another. They do so by their own decision. They deny the brotherhood of man, or if they do not deny it they accept only the principle, ignoring the practice.

The promises they make to each other in the wake of each new wave of death and destruction could be kept. They could be renewed from year to year as the promise of Easter is renewed. Men could do this, if

Many do choose to do it. For almost 2,000 years, men have been moving closer to realization of the promise of Easter: that mankind can be redeemed if there is faith.

Wherever the grass grows green on a soldier's grave, or a blossom falls on ground hallowed by suffering and death this Easter, the promise is renewed in someone's heart. Men never were closer to understanding the ultimate wisdom of Christianity than they are today, disillusioned by their latest denial of brotherhood with their own kind.

Steel production throughout the country, reports Civilian Production Administration, is declining, due to the bituminous strike. Emergency conditions are imminent in railroads and coal-using utilities. All hope of further progress with reconversion now depends on John L. Lewis.

The first products of reconverted industry frequently are halted short of the market or marketed apolegetically because some essential part cannot be sup plied pending decision of other labor leaders to le unfor members go back to work.

State Medicine Is The Issue

is a tragic misfortune for the American people that extremists are doing most of the talking in the argument over ways and means of providing more adequate medical care. They misrepresent the issue ch is whether or not the United States is to institute a plan of state medicine. Everyone is in fundamental agreement on one point: that more adequate medical care for a greater number of citizens is desirable. The differences arise over the means of providing more adequate care. The bulk of the medical profession favors development of voluntary methods which already have produced tremeddous improvement in health security. These are the familiar methods of prepayment of medical costs and insurance.

The alternative offered by the profession's critics is state medicine, calling for involuntary payments from the public, a new division of federal bureaucracy and political control of the medical profession This is the real issue. It is clouded deliberately and ciously by persons who try to make it appear that the issue is whether or not to give more Americans more adequate medical care. They profess to be interested in a goal which is not at issue at all, when what they are really interested in is the means.

The medical profession has only one weapon with which to defend itself against the attempted political invasion of its prerogatives-the confidence of the people themselves. It is a battle for popular consent. On sone side are the doctors asking for the right to keep their profession out of politics. On the other side are the politicians itching for the privilege of getting their hands on the doctors and on the vast public funds that would accrue under state medicine.

Resurrection

Mild April sunlight sifted through

The hushed cathedral echoed with

Knelt in reverence but she heard

Bougainville? Dot on a map.

The leaded panes of gold and rose.

The song which every Christian knows:

"Christ, the Lord, is risen today,

Sons of men and angels say."

And Mrs. Brown-grown old, they claim,

Just since her Johnny went away-

No organ note, no neighbor pray.

For that is where young Johnny fought

A place with ocean-bounded skies.

Christian anthems are forgot

There amid the jungle rot.

A tear slipped from the mother's eye.

Her pew-mate's voice entangled with

The tenor of a charister

The sunlight strangely blinded her.

A new form on the architrave.

"Oh, John," she muttered half aloud.

A mother mourning for her dead.

Not wanting to stare rudely at

An unseen hand seemed to engrave

The worshippers stared straight ahead,

But Mrs. Brown smiled suddenly

They need not know; they could not hear

Sod splitting, half the world away.

They could not hear her Johnny say:

"There is no death for those who give

Their lives that other men may live."

Town Comes To the End FARR, COL.-This town is disappearing from the map. The post office ended 40 years of operation recently and the 12 families who lived here are moving away.

Mild April sunlight sifted through The leaded panes of gold and rose The hushed cathedral echoed with The song which every Christian knows: "Christ, the Lord, is risen today, Sons of men and angels say."

And Mrs. Brown-grown old, they claim, Just since her Johnny went away-Knelt in reverence but she heard No organ note, no neighbor pray. She thought: One grave at Bougainville Has no one there to break the seal.

For that is where young Johnny fought And that is where young Johnny lies Bougainville? Dot on a map. A place with ocean-bounded skies Christian anthems are forgot There amid the jungle rot.

A tear slipped from the mother's eye The sunlight strangely blinded her. Her pew-mate's voice entangled with The tenor of a chorister. An unseen hand seemed to engrave A new form on the architrave

"Oh John" she muttered half aloud The worshippers stared straight ahead, Not wanting to stare rudely at A mother mourning for her dead. But Mrs. Brown smiled suddenly And raised her face for all to see.

They need not know; they could not hear Sod splitting, half the world away. They would not see a carving change; They could not hear her Johnny say: There is no death for those who give Their lives that other men may live.

Cy Young to Take Part In Pre-Game Ceremony With Gov. Lausche

AT TRIBE GAMES

CLEVELAND, April 20-Dento (Cy) Young, who pitched the firs game of a brilliant career with Cleveland 56 years ago, will lead Tigers to the stadium flagpole to day before an expected record crowd of 50,000 in the Tribe's home

Young, a spry Peoli, O., farmer of 79 summers who won an alltime high of 511 major league game as a speedy right-hander, shares the limelight today with Gov. Frank Lausche and acting Mayor Le Howley, the initial "battery" of to day's contest.

Howley, also a right-hander, was called upon to relieve "Southpaw Mayor Thomas A. Burke to hurl the opening pitch while Gov. Lausche has insisted that he will be able to catch Howley's promised

Hayes Starts Again

Gov. Lausche will be relieved immediately, if not sooner, by another Frank -- "Iron-Man" Hayes -- who will extend his major league record to 312 consecutive games behind 137 127 187 451 the plate in the Indians' opening ineup.

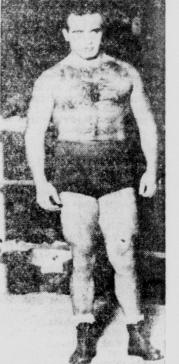

Steve Gromek, who defeated the World Champion Tigers four times in five starts while winning 19 games last year, will take the mound against Hal Newhouser, ace of Steve O'Neill's hurling brigade.

The Indians, victorious in their first two starts this year, are expected to draw 100,000 fans today and tomorrow following "an unbe ievable" advance ticket sale, Tribe officials reported.

Bob Feller will aim for his second victory of the season tomorrow against the Tigers' Frank Overnire. The Indians' speed king made spectacular start in the fight to The yearling sales return to regain his major league pitching crown Tuesday, shutting out the four days, Aug. 13 through 16. Al-

First National Loans for Small Business

While the First National has the business of many of the largest enterprises in the Salem area, it is also the policy of this bank and its officers to assist small firms in their peacetime expansion programs. In fact, that's how some of the large firms got that way. We have fostered the growth of many local industries by providing the loans they have needed.

We invite you to make your credit requirements known to us. You will receive prompt and friendly consideration.
